Spanish-Language Resources in CCOL and on the Web

This was the first book published in New Mexico in 1834. Unfortunately, the US did not remain bilingual. One result is a lack of college-level scholarly materials in Spanish.

This handout has the best resources I could find. If you find more, please send them and I'll update the handout. Send them to library@cambridgecollege.edu

For Spanish-language resources in the Cambridge College Online Library

On the left menu of the CCOL home page, click ESL/EFL Help for links to many resources.

The Oceano Universitas Spanish-language database is in the CCOL. Océano Universitas has at its disposal information from over 191,000 articles in Spanish and 40,000 graphics and images with specific content from the Spanish-speaking countries.

To search this database:

- Log into CCOL from MyCC
- On the CCOL home page, in Direct to Databases, click Oceano Universitas

Note: for technical reasons, the Oceano database is not included in any of the “Search …” boxes in CCOL. It can only be searched directly from the link in Direct to Databases.
